

Problem statement A four foot long stick is broken into three pieces. One piece is painted red, and one is painted green, and one is painted blue. What is the chance that the blue piece is at least one foot long at the same time that the red piece is more than twice as long as the green piece?