

Euler's Formula and Complex Numbers

For the next case of roots of the characteristic equation for second-order, linear, constant-coefficient equations, we will look at complex roots. This needs some properties of complex numbers.

In order to solve constant-coefficient equations with complex roots, we need to determine what e^{rt} is, for r a complex number. This comes down to Euler's formula.